

The artistic temperament was no doubt responsible for the mistake, but the artistic temperament did not save the two clever musicians from the jokes of their friends. It seems that they had their dates mixed and went some miles out of town to play at a concert which was not to take place for twenty-four hours. The time was well spent.

The leading lady had no idea how close home she struck when she was alighting her partial French in the play. The matter of what she termed "a meat alliance" was almost too real for the enjoyment of certain of her audience.

"Have you seen Ethel's husband? You know he's almost too good to be true."

"I think you mean too good-looking to be true, dear, don't you?"

"Yes, I was married last month. You must come and see the dear little flat I have."

"I have seen him, my dear."—Life.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT HAT?

Some Salt Lake Men Who Are Troubled With Big Craniums.

HEADS OF UNUSUAL SIZE

FEW MEN LIKELY TO MISTAKE THESE HATS FOR THEIR OWN.

How many men are there in Salt Lake who wear a 7½ size hat? Perhaps you have never thought of it unless you are a hatter, but it is a fact that there are but few men in the city whose heads are sufficiently large to accommodate a hat of that size. Among the thousands of men who buy new hats every year, there are probably not more than a half dozen who can demand a 7½ hat, knowing that it will fit them comfortably.

The average man with a hat of this size on his head would look like a candle with the snuffer on, or like a 3-year-old child with his grandfather's shiny felt settled down over his ears.

William D. Rishel, sporting editor of The Herald, is one of the few men who can wear a hat of that size and look "right" under it. Other men wearing this size pay cash for their head coverings, and it is more difficult to learn who they are. One is M. E. Callahan, a nurseryman, while another is an employee of the Salt Lake Route, whose name is not on record in the office of the hatter. J. T. Brady, a Pueblo, Colo., traveling man who frequently makes this territory, is another who wears a 7½ when he buys a new hat. When he wins an election bet, he has an advantage of about one full size over the ordinary man.

An Expensive Hat.

There is one Ogden man who requires a 7½ size hat, and he is seldom able to get what he wants in the Junction City. He came to Salt Lake last week and bought a hat. He made the trip for this purpose, and when he figured up the day's expenses he found that his hat had cost him between $12 and $15.

A traveling man from Chicago dropped into a local hatter's a few days ago and asked to try on some of the latest shapes, stating that if he could get a hat to fit him he would buy it.

Several hats were tried on, each one a little larger than the last. Ordinary hats looked like minstrel show togery, but he finally got one that had the right "feel." He walked out happy, and said:

"This is the only town west of Chicago I ever struck where I could get a hat to fit me." His size was 7½. There was only one hat of this size in the stock of the store where he made his purchase. Only one larger hat was ever sold in that store. It was a No. 8, and had been included in the shipment by mistake. Hats of this size and larger are not kept in stock, but are ordered specially from the factories.

Fully 60 per cent of the men in Salt Lake have what is termed "regular conformation." That is, their heads deviate so little from the regular oval shape that it is not necessary to have the hats "shaped" to fit all around. These men can walk into a store and find a size that fits, and walk out, wearing the new hat and leaving the old one to be delivered. Those whose hats have to be "conformed," must forego the pleasure of appearing in their new togery until the hatter has finished shaping the hat on the conforming machine.

The most popular-sized hat sold in Salt Lake is the 7½, and it is necessary for the dealers to order greater numbers of this size than any other, when placing their regular orders for stock. The 6½ and 7 run close to the 7½ in popularity. Fully 75 per cent of the hats sold here are in these sizes.

Sheets Has a Long Head.

Prominent Salt Lake men wear all kinds and sizes of hats. The most popular hat is, of course, the stiff black hat in the modish shapes. Former Governor Heber M. Wells wears a 7½ hat. His hats are never shaped for him. He picks out the hat he likes, tries it on, and if it suits him walks out with it. F. C. Schramm wears the same size. Chief of Police George A. Sheets also wears this size. His hats must be shaped to conform to his head, which is longer than the average from front to back.

D. H. Peery wears a 7½, and Battling Nelson, who recently purchased a new head covering, wears the same size as the chief of police. "Billy" Nolan, who bought a hat at the same time his little fighting machine got his, wears a 6½.

A large number of prominent Salt Lake men wear 7½. Among these is Frank J. Westcott. He has a long head. E. M. Allison, Jr., wears this size, as does Senator C. E. Loose of Provo. S. D. Evans wears a 7½ and has a long head. Judge Ogden Hiles wears a 7½, as does James Ivers. So do Frank E. McGurran and Mayor Ezra Thompson. The latter usually wears a soft hat, but when purchasing a new one, Bishop Scanlan wears a 7½, as does Father Kiely. Father Ryan wears 7½. Judge Samuel Merritt wears 7½. Former Senator Joseph S. Rawlins wears the same size as Mayor Thompson. W. F. Adams and John S. Critchlow are also in the 7½ class. O. J. Salesbury, chairman of the Republican state committee, wears a 7½, and his head is of the "regular" shape. Benner X. Smith, former district attorney, wears this size. Among others who could exchange hats with any of those mentioned without noticing any difference are Judge H. P. Henderson, Judge C. C. Goodwin and David Keith.

Kearns' Head "Regular."

Former United States Senator Thomas Kearns wears 7½, and, according to the hatters' standard, his head is well shaped. J. T. Brady is an "ice man," wears a 7, and Frank Knox, president of the National Bank of the Republic, wears ¾ size larger. Both are regular in shape.

County Attorney Parley P. Christensen's size is 7½, with regular conformation. Judge W. H. Dickson wears a 7½ size, regular shape. Don C. Porter, proprietor of the Kenyon hotel, wears a larger size, his hats running to the 7½ size, or within ½ of the limit carried in regular stock.
